MOZART HAYDN

and their Contemporaries

and their Contemporaries

Music historians are generally agreed that the Classical era stretched from the second half of the eighteenth century to around the first decade of the nineteenth. It was a time of extraordinary creativity – dominated by composers from the German-speaking countries – which saw the creation of masterpieces by two classical giants, Franz Joseph Haydn (1732–1809) and Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart (1756–1791).

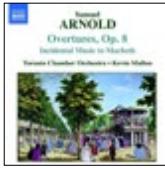

The downside of giants is that they cast shadows, but this Naxos catalogue illuminates the plethora of excellent works written by other composers of the era, whose music is happily becoming increasingly appreciated by today's music lovers. In the A-Z index, for example, you'll find some one hundred discs before you reach Haydn's name, and a further eighty after you've finished with Mozart.

We hope you will enjoy not only browsing the catalogue for its consolidated recordings of music by the giants, but also discovering new names, their winning works and some memorable music.
